BIG NEWS

POO PROBLEMS

The water company, Severn Trent Water, has had more than 3,000 blockages in its sewers recently.

The company's head of blockages reminded people that "kitchen roll and wipes are not designed to break down like loo roll". He also added that "no-one really wants to dig out poo, kitchen roll and wipes".

RIVER RUNS RED

This picture is of the Etobicoke Creek in Canada.

It might look like some biblical story where the river runs red. The explanation, however, is much less divine. The local council admitted that 400 litres of red ink had spilled into the creek and that a clean-up was underway.

WATER RESCUE

Meet Olive from Oxford! This pup chased a rat into a big water pipe and got lost in the sewers.

Two Thames Water engineers, James Lewis and Jack Gale, spent two hours lifting manhole covers along the the pipeline to find her. Lewis said that when they pulled Olive out, she was "bouncing with excitement, her owner had a tear in her eye and I had a lump in my throat. It was a fantastic feeling".
