

BRITISH VALUES

As part of our ongoing commitment to the British Values Curriculum and our unique Rainbow Curriculum here at St Anselm's, we invite you to read this story with your children. Your involvement is crucial in reinforcing these values and qualities at home, so please take a moment to explore the themes and talk about them together. Let's work hand in hand to inspire thoughtful conversations and help our children be good friends, deep thinkers and morally responsible citizens with an active voice, who are informed to make positive contributions to society.

What are some special or meaningful ways to remember someone?

In the news this week

The UK government has launched an online exhibition, to show five different designs for a new national memorial for Queen Elizabeth II. The memorial is planned for St James's Park in London, England, and will be made to remember and celebrate the late Queen's 70-year reign. People can look at all five designs online, and the government is inviting the public to share their thoughts via an online form. One design will be chosen in early summer 2025 to become the final memorial.

Things to talk about at home ...

- Share your thoughts about the idea behind the memorial. Do you believe this is a good way to remember Queen Elizabeth II?
- Talk to someone at home about what you feel the memorial should include and why.
- Are there any memorials close to where you live? Do you know who they are for and why they were made?
- Can you think of any other ways we can remember loved ones?

Which British Value?

DEMOCRACY

We all have a say.
Our opinion and our vote matters.

What can we learn from this?

We all have a voice and the right to be heard. By asking the public for their views on the memorial, the government is inviting us to be part of a decision that is important to our country.

COMMUNICATION AND COLLABORATION

What can we learn from this?

The UK government's online exhibition inviting public input on memorial designs for Queen Elizabeth II reflects our Communication and Collaboration Rainbow Curriculum strand. It shows how democratic values, respectful communication, and shared decision-making are vital in real life—just as our children learn to listen, share ideas and work together to make meaningful contributions in school and beyond.
