

BRITISH VALUES

As part of our ongoing commitment to the British Values Curriculum and our unique Rainbow Curriculum here at St Anselm's, we invite you to read about this story with your children. Your involvement is crucial in reinforcing these values and qualities at home, so please take a moment to explore the themes and talk about them together. Let's work hand in hand to inspire thoughtful conversations and help our children be good friends, deep thinkers and morally responsible citizens with an active voice, who are informed to make positive contributions to society.

What does it mean to feel included?

The Football Association (FA) has laid out new plans aimed at raising awareness and increasing participation in disability football. The strategy, called Football Without Limits, includes growing the Comets programme for young people aged 5-11. The FA says Comets will be the most inclusive format of the sport and will provide a safe and supportive space for children to start playing football.

Things to talk about at home ...

- > Share your thoughts about the FA's plans to increase awareness of disability football.
- > Can you think of a time when you have felt like you belonged (perhaps in a team or group)? What was it that made you feel included? Ask the same questions to someone at home.
- > Ask people at home whether they, or someone they know, have benefitted from a similar programme.

Which British Value?

INDIVIDUAL LIBERTY

We all have rights and responsibilities.

Our rights can change if we don't act responsibly.

What can we learn from this?

Everyone has the right to be included in sports. Through our choices and our actions, we can help to ensure everyone is included.

SELF APPRECIATION AND MUTUAL RESPECT

What can we learn from this?

Including people with disabilities in sports and other activities is important because it helps everyone feel valued and respected. It gives people with disabilities the chance to show their abilities, build confidence, and feel good about themselves. At the same time, it helps others understand and appreciate differences, showing that we all have something to offer. When everyone works together, it breaks down barriers and brings people closer, creating a fairer and kinder community..
